Introducing Winter Mountain Manners

CBMR is proud to partner with Mountain Manners, a local educational campaign and advocacy group focused on teaching recreators proper outdoor etiquette. The initiative began as an education campaign surrounding Crested Butte's famed Wildflower Festival, and the resort felt the message was just as important for winter. The campaign incorporates 10 "Manners," of which you'll find a shortened version detailed below, as a reminder that we can all be a little more gracious and kind to each other, and the environment.

1. It's Okay to Follow the Beaten Path: Stay within the ski resort boundaries and on trails.
2. Scoop the Poop: No. 2 is becoming our No. 1 issue. Remember to pack out Daisy's doo doo.
3. Speak Up: If you see someone not minding their manners, don't be afraid to start a respectful conversation.
4. Cache the Car: Walk, pedal or ride the free Mountain Express shuttle buses.
5. Use the Rule of Thumb: Don't get too close to wildlife.
6. Be a Good Role Model: Be the good, in life as well as on the slopes.
7. Put Smiles in Everyone's Miles: Be kind and courteous to all on the slopes.
8. Gather Garbage for Good: Get rid of litter even when it isn't yours.
9. Reduce Your Footprint, Wherever You Lay Your Head: Turn off lights, lower the heat when away and try to conserve water.
10. Don't Mess With (Mother) Nature: Help keep this area pristine; don't take nature with you.
